

Brown Long-Eared Bat ~ Plectus Auritus

Brown long-eared bats are found in the UK and across Europe. This species eats moths, beetles, flies, earwigs and spiders. Their ears are nearly as long as the body but it is not always obvious: when at rest they curl their ears back like rams' horns, or tuck them away completely under their wings leaving only the pointed inner lobe of the ear (the tragus) visible.

